SAYS GULD ADMITTED JUDICIARY "FRAME-UP"

EX-MAYOR BABBITT OF FITCHBURG THROWS NEW LIGHT ON "DEAL."

FITCHBURG, May 28.—That Governor Guld admitted to the committee of the Fitchburg Bar Association, which waited upon him at the State House yesterday, that he knew when he signed the bill creating a second grade judgeship in Worcester County that the bill was "framed up" in the interest of Assistant Register Fred H. Chandler, is the assertion made today by former Mayor Charles H. Babbitt of this city, who was chairman of the committee.

"To me," said former Mayor Babbitt, "the admission made yesterday by the Governor, for any could be expected to have signed his name to a bill which came to him framed up and making him the tool of the Legislature."

Governor Demanded.

The reports made by Mr. Babbitt and other members of the committee have added fuel to the flames which were started by the first revelations of the deal by which it was declared Governor Guld was trafficking in judicial appointments. Today the Republic of Fitchburg and all over northern Worcester county are under then before by their denunciation of the Governor and what they assert is his practice of his side effect.

"The effect of this condition of affairs," said Mr. Babbitt, "will be everywhere apparent throughout the State. An attempt will be made to keep secret the fact that the bill was framed up by the man who the State Legislature passed legislation for him."

NEW YORK, May 28.—A woman is held by the police to have been the death Father Kaspar Varian, the Armenian priest whose body was found stuffed in a trunk in a West Thirty-seventh street tenement house. Babbitt is the man who has been the motive force in the crime, although many Armenians cling to the belief that the priest's widow, the wife of an Armenian peddler, had the bill which was framed up by the man who the State Legislature passed legislation for him.

Had Money and Jewel.

Five hours later the trunk in which the body was found reached the Thirty-seventh street house. The police believe the woman was used to lure the priest to the house and that the murder was com-

Young Woman Hurled Herself Over Rail of the City of Chelsea, but Boat Men Dragged Her from Water—Gave Name of Alice Long.

Before the eyes of scores of passengers on the ferry-boat City of Chelsea, a well-dressed young woman attempted to commit suicide to-day by leaping into the bay from that boat.

She was rescued by members of the crew of the tug Metropolitan.

After she had been removed to the Relief Station by the police boat Watchman she said her name was Alice Long, and that she lived at No. 144 West Third street, Chelsea. She refused to tell why she had tried to kill herself.

The girl is twenty years old, weighs 110 pounds, and is 5 feet 4 inches tall. She has brown wavy hair and hazel eyes.

RESCUED BY CREW IN BOAT.

She was dressed in a long coat of mixed material, a black waist and black skirt of good quality and colored shoes. The police are not yet certain of her identity.

The ferry boat had left the Chelsea wharf before any of the passengers noticed anything unusual in the conduct of the young woman. The some of the passengers saw her approach the rail of the boat and after looking about furtively for a few moments jump overboard.

The tug Metropolitan was passing at the time. She rounded to. The crew pulled in a boat and pulled the young woman into it.

She was unconscious. The police boat Watchman was summoned and the young woman was hurried to the Relief Station. Restrictive and stimulative were applied. The girl recovered consciousness and gave her name and address, but refused to tell why she had jumped overboard.

WORK OF RESCUE DIFFICULT.

Members of the crew of the City of Chelsea and passengers upon that boat said that the young woman had seemed to be sane. They saw her talk to nobody on board the boat. She said to herself, before she jumped to the rail, from which she jumped a few minutes later.

By the time the tug Metropolitan was drawing as the crew of the Metropolitan reached her feet before she had been swept under the water for the last time.

The high wind blowing down the bay and the choppy waves made the work of rescue from that place very difficult.

By the time the tug Metropolitan reached the drowning girl she had become so exhausted that she was unable to struggle against her rescuers. The physicians at the Relief Station asked her whether she wanted water or food. She said she did not.

The city directory of Chelsea does not contain the name of the young woman. She was hurried to the Relief Station. Restrictive and stimulative were applied. The girl recovered consciousness and gave her name and address, but refused to tell why she had jumped overboard.

NEW HAVEN ROAD'S GRAP SYSTEM BARED IN SUIT

BROKERS WHO AIDED TROLLEY SEIZURE DEMAND AN ACCOUNTING.

A most important battle, in the course of which a searchlight will be thrown upon the methods used by the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company in its campaign to absorb the transportation facilities of New England was begun in the Massachusetts Superior Court today.

It is in the form of an action brought by Robert L. Warner of No. 211 State street and Thomas L. Perkins of Hartford, Ct., against the members of the big brokerage firm of George D. Mackay & Co. of New York.

Warner and Perkins charge that they helped Mackay & Co. acquire for the New Haven road the stock of the New England Investment and Street Railway Company, which controlled all the street railways lines within a radius of fifty miles of Worcester.

The suit shows that the New Haven road had paid $200,000 for a voluntary liquidation of the New England Investment and Street Railway Company, which controlled all the street railways lines within a radius of fifty miles of Worcester.

There are parties in the courts of this State several actions brought against the New Haven road charging that they violated the law in buying stock of other transportation corporations in Massachusetts.

WOMAN DISAPPEARS; HUSBAND IS ARRESTED

Special to the Boston American.
NEWTON, ATTORNEY, May 28.—Following the mysterious disappearance of Mrs. Hannah McNulty of this town to Pawtucket Saturday, her husband, James McNulty, was arrested by the local police today and has been lodged in the Taunton jail. The Pawtucket police have been asked by the local authorities to drop the case at Pawtucket. This will be done in an attempt to find the body of the woman.

Mrs. McNulty is held upon a charge of drunkenness. He says that his wife left him Saturday night. He says he does not know where she went. Her brother and her sister today urged the police to renewed activity in their search for her, saying they believe that she has met with foul play.

BOSTON HOME BENEFITED.

James McNulty, 47, of Pawtucket, R. I., was arrested by the local police today and has been lodged in the Taunton jail. The Pawtucket police have been asked by the local authorities to drop the case at Pawtucket. This will be done in an attempt to find the body of the woman.
